Navy Shooting Improves

Long Range Practice Scores

Better Than Last Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Further details of navy target practices conducted during the last year, made public at the Navy Department, show that while the short range battle practice acores were somewhat lower than a year ago, the efficiency of the major ships at long range practice under stimulated battle conditions was greatly maproved. Firing by divisions at ranges up to 20,000 yards, the battle anip scores as finally tabulated showed an average merit of 33.76 this year, as compared with 6.56 a year ago. In day firing at long ranges for individual ships the average merit this year was 44.46, the announcement said, against 32.07 last year, an improvement of 39 per cent. The short range director or centralized control firing also showed an improvement this year. The greatest progress in gunnery was made during the year by the battleships, the announcement added.

Eugene Meyer Jr. Urges Extension Of Postal Savings Stricken Suddenly in Washington Home; European Gov-

Tells Senate Reconstruction Committee Interest Rate Should Be Raised to 4%; Would FosterThrift Spirit

Addressing the Senate Special Com-Addressing the Senate Special Committee on Reconstruction and Production here yesterday, Eugene Meyer jr., former managing director of the War Finance Corporation, urged the extension of the postal savings system at an attractive rate, of interest, in order to furnish "banking facilities to the great body of common people."

The financier advised amending existing legislation so as to authorize payment of a 4 per cent rate of interest on postal savings deposits, instead of the 2 per cent now offered. He also advocated increasing the number of postoffices authorized to accept postal savings from 6,500 to all the 55,000 now in the service.

Could Pay Floating Debt

Although a graduate of the Columbia University Law School, he had been engaged in newspaper work most of his life, principally in this city and New York. During the war he was one of The Associated Press representatives at the State Department. Shortly before the meeting of the Paris, where he acted as adviser to the French government on American press matters. When he returned he joined the Washington staff of The New York Sun. At the time of his death he was a practising attorney.

Mr. Peet had received decorations from the French, Swedish and Greek governments.

Could Pay Floating Debt

Within a year, Mr. Meyer said, these offices would receive deposits sufficient to pay off the floating indebtedness of the United States government. He gave it as his opinion that deposits could be increased to such an extent that they would cover a large part, if not all, of the Victory Loan maturing in 1923, amounting to more than $4,000,000,000.

The taking up of Treasury certifications in 1923, amounting to more than $4,000,000,000.

The taking up of Treasury certificates by postal savings would relieve the banks of the burden the government imposed on them during and since the war and would permit the institutions to use all of their available funds for business purposes, Mr. Meyer said.

In addition to improving the postition of the Federal Reserve banks, the redemption of certificates would bring about, he said, a rise in Liberty pends of from 5 to 10 per cent.

Another result expected by Mr. Meyer from the extension of the postal savings system at a more attractive rate was the bringing forth of at least $250,000,000 in coin and currency now being hoarded. This money, he said, would be restored to circulation.

The raising of the rate of interest on postal savings would, Mr. Meyer explained, mean the saving of large amounts of money that would otherwise be invested in "wildcat" schemes or turned over to unscrupulous promoters. A low estimate of this saving would be $200,000,000 ayear, he said.

Mr. Meyer also estimated that from Mr. Meyer also from the Belgian front. The body will be sent to the home of his pervise.

ernments, state and Federal officials and leaders of patriotic and historical organizations are to take part in the program.

The American battleships Florida and Delaware and the rench battleship Ville d'Ys have already arrived. Terrific tooting of whistles greeted the two Yankee battle craft as they hove into the harbor this afternoon and dropped anchor close to the French craft. Captain P. N. Olmstead, of the Florida, is the ranking officer, consequently the official delegation of the town went aboard that craft to extend formal welcome to him and to Captain M. Deruffi de Penteves Gevaudan, commander of the Ville d'Ys, also visited the Florida to pay his respects.

Provincetown's main street and the harbor to an even greater extent have assumed an international aspect. The streets to-night are crowded, and French and American sailors mingle conspicuously in the throngs. The buildings are covered with bunting.

Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby is now expected to be one of the speakers at the exercise Monday. The British Embassy at Washington has sent word that Captain Geoffrey will represent the British government.

Special services will be held in all the churches Sunday morning.

At least 150 persons from North Truro are coming to the services as their Pilgrim fathers did. All will wear the Pilgrim costume. The men will sling flintlocks from their shoulders and the women will carry their Bibles in their hands. "Priscilla Alden" will lead the procession on a heifer, in accordance with the tradition.

Monday' is to be the street parade.

American ships are providing 1,000 sailors and marines and an equal number is expected from the foreign ships.
The several art colonies, delegations from every town on Cape Cod and from nearly all the patriotic societies will be in line. Plymouth is to send 1,000 costumed persons. Another section will be composed of 1,000 school children of Provincetown, costumed to represent a sunrise. More than forty floats have been entered. They represent the Mayflower, signing the compact, first
